PEOPLE DANCING

Dance Exchange

"I am interested in remembering why I started dancing and how happy I was at that moment; in what we dance about; in who gets to do the dancing; in performers that look like people dancing, not dancers dancing; in the idea that dance is a birthright," says Liz Lerman.

Her multigenerational company features performers from the mid-twenties to mid-seventies, and redefines our notions about dance, dancers and aging.

The New York Times called Lerman "one of the most articulate and compassionate of social commentators in the arts today...a vein of poignant concern runs through the satirical humor of her dances."

Dance Exchange negates the notion that dance and performance should be restricted to 21-year-old sylphs. Mature confidence and a sense of purpose convey a special, gentle lesson in humanity.

San Francisco Performances presents Liz Lerman Dance Exchange at the Cowell Theater in its San Francisco debut with all original works. Shows are March 10 through 13, Thursday through Saturday at 8pm, Sunday at 2pm. Tickets are $12 and $16 on Thursday, $16 and $20 Friday through Sunday. For information, call 398-6449.

SOUNDSHAPE II

John Cage called Tan Dun's pieces "sounds central to the nature in which we live, and to which we have too long not listened."

Soundshape II: for ceramics, water, and paper is a world premiere production of Tan Dun's latest work. The earth itself, water and paper are experienced in a ritual of sound, space, silence and spirit.

Dun's Soundshape series experiments with natural sources of sound, and parallels his Orchestral Theatre series, which reimagines the role of the western orchestra.

Tan, one of the leading composers of today's 'new internationalism,' performs with members of his company, Crossings: David Anthony, Regina Bellantese, Chen Shizheng, Bruce Gremo, Paul Guerguerian and Tomoko Inaba.

The ceramic instruments used in the piece were created by well-known New York potter Ragnar Naess, in collaboration with Mr. Dun, and are evocative craft objects in their own right.

Soundshape I: for ceramics, voice and movement was commissioned by the Guggenheim Museum in 1990, and presented at the 1991 Edinburgh International Festival. His Orchestral Theatre series was commissioned by the BBC and the Suntory Prize 1993.

The performance is presented at the Cowell Theater March 3 through 6, Thursday through Saturday 8pm, Sunday 2 and 7pm. Tickets are $12 to $15. Student/Senior Rush tickets are available a half-hour before curtain time. The concert is part of Berkeley Repertory Theatre's spring program. For information, call (510) 845-4700.

CELTIC MUSIC & ARTS

The SF Bay Area Celtic Music and Arts Festival has been lauded by musicians and music lovers as the best festival outside of Ireland. This third annual event presents the best of Celtic music, from roots to contemporary, as well as dance, video and a marketplace with handmade arts and crafts.

Among the groups performing is Altan, a traditional Irish band featuring fiddles, flute, guitar and bouzouki. Their sound, with songs in both Gaelic and English, combines the melodic quality of Irish tunes with the power and drive of Scottish music.

Also featured is the team of Mick Moloney and Eugene O'Donnell. Moloney, a famed tenor banjo and mandolin player, is a major force in the revival of Irish music in the US. In his youth, O'Donnell was an all-Ireland step dancing champion and is now a famous fiddler and performer of traditional poems and recitations.

Sharron Shannon & Band were named top Irish musicians of 1992. Shannon has played accordion with the Waterboys and with Bob Dylan. They are joined on the bill by singer Martin Hayes, Stockton's Wing, Johnny Moynihan and Friends, and The Mollys, Arizona's "slightly spurious" Celtic-Latin-American band.

Festival events also include arts and crafts directly from Ireland and Scotland, a children's corner, food, beverages and refreshments.

The Third Annual Celtic Music and Arts Festival, produced by the Irish Arts Foundation, is open from 11:30am to 11pm Saturday and Sunday, March 5 and 6. Single-day admission is $15 in advance or $17 at the door. Children are $5 for 6-14, 5 and under free. A special $25 two-day ticket can be purchased in advance. For tickets, call City Box Office, 392-4400.

OUD, TAR, & DIGERIDOO

Hamza El Din

Hamza El Din was born in Nubia, along the Nile River near the southern Egyptian border. He grew up in a culture rich in melodic and rhythmic music.

While studying engineering in Cairo, he took up the oud, a prinicipal instrument of Arab classical music and a precursor of the lute. He later studied music formally at the Conservatory of Music in Cairo.

First discovered by Western audiences through his performance at the Newport Folk Festival and Vanguard recordings in 1964, his 1970 Nonesuch recording, Escalay: The Water Wheel, is legendary among musicians and connoisseurs. His best-known recording in the US is Eclipse, produced and engineered by Grateful Dead percussionist Mickey Hart.

Hamza's music has also been heard on movie soundtracks, including Francis Ford Coppola's The Black Stallion. He has appeared frequently with the Kronos Quartet, and recently scored and performed in The Persians, directed by Peter Sellars.

Performing on the oud and tar (the ancient single-skinned frame drum of the upper Nile), Hamza combines the subtleties of Arabic music with the indigenous music of his native Nubia, informed by Western conservatory training.

Opening the performances is Trancemission's dynamic Stephen Kent, playing the digeridoo, the ancient hollowed-out wooden instrument from Australia.

The compositions of these two artists are influenced by the sounds of the modern world, but also possess a great respect for the ancient traditions and origins of their instruments. These performances are a treat for anyone with an interest in world music.

"Hamza El Din In Concert With Stephen Kent" is presented in the Cowell Theater, March 18 and 19, Friday and Saturday at 8:15pm. Tickets are $15 in advance, $17 at the performance. For information, call 647-2272.

PROSE TO PERFORMANCE

Maxine Hong Kingston

The National Writers Union hosts "Prose To Performance," an evening of conversation with Isabel Allende, Barry Gifford, and Maxine Hong Kingston about the process of translating novels to film and stage. The event, moderated by Naomi Epel, is a benefit for the NWU.

Isabel Allende took the country by storm with the publication of The House of the Spirits. A film version, starring Jeremy Irons, Meryl Streep and Glenn Close, opened recently. Allende's novel Of Love and Spirits was produced as a movie in Argentina. She has written for the stage in her native country, Chile, and her fiction has been translated into 27 languages.

Barry Gifford's Wild At Heart, directed by David Lynch, won le Palme d'Or at the Cannes Film Festival. His new film, the sequel Perdita Durango, is based on his novel Sailor's Holiday. Perdita Durango goes into production this August, directed by Bigas Lunas. Gifford also wrote the theme music and will appear in the film.

Maxine Hong Kingston's books include Woman Warrior, honored with a National Book Critics Circle Award, China Men, winner of a National Book Award and a contender for a Pulitzer Prize, and Tripmaster Monkey: His Fake Book, which receive the 1989 PEN Fiction Award. In May, the Berkeley Repertory Theatre will premiere Woman Warrior, an adaptation based on Kingston's Woman Warrior and China Men.

Naomi Epel hosts "Booktalk," a weekly radio program on KALW-FM. She is a dream researcher and author of Writers Dreaming, a book of interviews.

The National Writers Union represents nearly 5,000 members in twelve locals around the country. NWU is the only trade union in the United States to engage in collective bargaining for writers. For information about the NWU, call 252-9876.

"Prose to Performance" takes place at the Cowell Theater on Tuesday, March 22 at 7:30pm. Tickets are $16. A wine and cheese reception follows. For tickets, call City Box Office, 392-4400, or BASS, 776-1999.

WILDERNESS & SPIRIT

A man drops down to the stage on a slender rope, laughing, and talks to the audience about the love of esoteric knots that led him to mountain climbing.

Willi Unsoeld was a self-proclaimed wilderness fanatic, a climber who disdained the safe southern route up Everest to forge a new way up the uncharted west ridge. His life was about courage and risk-taking, the glory of nature, and the religious experience. It was also about pain and fear, tragedy, and the sanctity of family.

Craig Menteer

Unsoeld was a member of the first American expedition to climb Mt. Everest, co-founder of Washington's Evergreen State College, and a seminal figure in the wilderness education foundation Outward Bound. He was professor of religion and philosophy at Oregon State University and an outspoken and popular advocate for the spiritual value of wilderness. Willi, An Evening of Wilderness and Spirit is Unsoeld's own words, compiled by playwright John Pielmeier, performed by Craig Menteer.

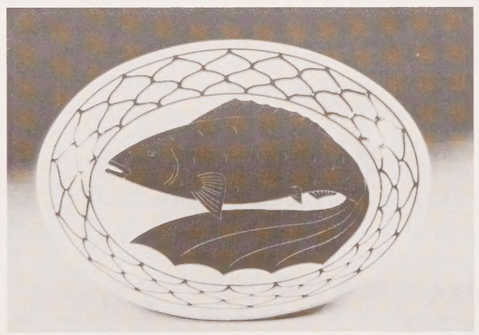
We share with Unsoeld the joy of singular achievement: what it's like to cross a glacier, or to spend the night on a freezing mountainside. We share as well the pain of great loss as Nanda Devi, his 22-year-old daughter, dies in his arms of acute altitude sickness on the slopes of the mountain for which she was named. We learn that Unsoeld himself died in 1979 in an avalanche on the slopes of Mt. Rainier.

Playwright John Pielmeier, author of the Broadway hit and motion picture Agnes of God, brings the audience into the wilderness experience using moving passages from Unsoeld's writings and exquisite photos of the ascent of Everest.

Veteran Northwest actor and performance artist Craig Menteer has performed the play on tour for Montana Rep all over the state. "The man is such a contemporary," he says. "I'm playing a person who was alive and well, not someone who just came off a page."

Acclaimed in its Seattle premiere last year as "one of the finest one-man shows of the decade," Willi, An Evening of Wilderness and Spirit, plays at the Bayfront Theater March 9 through 27. Performances are Wednesday through Saturday at 8pm, Sunday at 2 and 7pm. Tickets are $12. For information, call City Box Office, 392-4400, or BASS, (510) 762-2277.

CONTEMPORARY CRAFTS



Porcelain
by John Mort

The largest crafts exposition in the western United States returns to Fort Mason this spring. The annual Contemporary Crafts Market features a wide selection of handmade gifts and collectibles from 350 of the country's finest potters, woodworkers, weavers, jewelers, photographers, leather workers, printmakers, and glassblowers. The show features a wide variety of unique items, including precious and semiprecious jewelry, elegant stained glass, handmade toys, sculpture, ceramics, finely-finished wood vessels and furniture, wearable art and more.

A special exhibit of outdoor artwork is displayed in a garden setting that allows visitors to experience the art in its intended environment. "One needs to understand the outdoors as a continuum of one's living space and human spirit," says artist Susan Beran. Her tall, free-flowing sculptures on themes drawn from the natural world are made to be displayed in wide-open spaces.

The show also features displays by Bay Area crafts organizations, including the Association of California Ceramic Artists, Artisans from Mill Valley, and California Contemporary Crafts (formerly known as Baulines Crafts Guild), and by individual local artists such as Oakland's Aron Rosenberg, San Francisco jeweler Amy Faust, and woodworker Christopher Cantwell.

Admission to the Contemporary Crafts Market is $5 for adults; children under 12 are admitted free. Show hours are 11am to 8pm Friday and Saturday, March 18 and 19, and 11am to 6pm Sunday, March 20. Free parking and shuttle service from Crissy Field are available throughout the weekend. For information, call 863-3906.

RIVERS TO THE BAY

Every year, Friends of the River hosts a gathering of members of the outdoor community, providing educational and recreational opportunities for those interested in water and energy policy, spreading FOR's message to the wider public, and just plain having fun.

"Rivers to the Bay," the 14th Annual River Conference and Festival, features dynamic speakers offering their views on important environmental and recreational issues, exciting entertainment, and exhibitors displaying the latest in boating, camping and outdoor recreation equipment. Conservation and environmental organizations present information on environmental activism and outdoor recreation.

A debate, "The Environmentalist: Activist or Extremist?" on Saturday, March 12 at 1pm is moderated by Tim Redmond, political editor for the Bay Guardian. Panelists include Carl Pope, Sierra Club executive director; David Brower, Earth Island Institute president; and Ann Riley, Golden State Wildlife Federation executive director.

The "Saturday Evening Affair: Eat, Drink & Bid" in the Herbst Pavilion begins at 5pm and includes a cocktail party and light supper buffet. A Live Auction starting at 6:30pm features dry suits, adventurous river trips, lifejackets, several rafts and kayaks, and much more. Tickets for the "Saturday Evening Affair" are $8.

A special highlight of the Conference is internationally known speaker Royal Robbins with "40 Years of Adventure," Sunday, March 13 at 2pm. Robbins shares his amazing story, from high-school dropout to world-class adventurer, teacher, businessman and environmentalist. His long list of credits includes first descents on more than 25 rivers and as many first ascents rock-climbing throughout North America and the Alps.

Conference attendees can choose from more than sixty informative workshops and hands-on training sessions that cover a variety of topics, including whitewater rafting, wilderness safety, sea-kayaking, exploring rivers in faraway places, conservation tactics and natural history. There is also an outdoor equipment Swap Auction in the Pavilion at 1pm on Sunday.

Friends of the River is a nonprofit organization dedicated to the preservation, protection and restoration of rivers, streams and their watersheds. FOR accomplishes its mission by providing public education, citizen activist training and organizing, and expert advocacy to influence public policy decisions on water management and energy issues.

"Rivers to the Bay" opens on Friday, March 11, with an all-day CPR and First Aid training session in Building C. Cost is $45; pre-registration is required. On Saturday, March 12, workshops start at 9am and continue through the day. On Sunday, March 13, workshops run from 9am to 12:45pm. Herbst Pavilion activities on Sunday include a Dunking Booth, a Swap Auction at 1pm, and a Dutch Oven Cook-Off at 1:15pm.

Other Festival activities include a film about bluegrass music on Friday evening in Berkeley and a kayak race in the Bay, Sunday morning at Aquatic Park.

A two-day admission ticket for the Saturday and Sunday events at Fort Mason Center is $35 at the door; Sunday only is $18. Fort Mason Center is wheelchair-accessible. For more details and ticket information, call Friends of the River, 771-0400.

KIDS CREATE

"Two people came in to talk about Bolivian art," said Taryn, a San Francisco third-grader. "We watched slides about how people from Bolivia live and how they weave the kind of clothes they wear. Then we started weaving bracelets and it really got fun. The yarn was outrageous because it was about ten different colors on the same yarn.

"While we wove our bracelets, Pamela put on some really neat music. I wish they could come again and teach us more about Bolivian arts. The fun all ended when they left."

For the past seven years, the San Francisco Craft & Folk Art Museum has brought "Folk Art in the Schools" to more than 9,000 eight to thirteen-year-olds annually. This innovative program emphasizes cultures represented in the Bay Area.

Traditional folk art techniques are presented using slides, stories, music and art from the Museum's study collections, reinforced by an art activity. Workshops include Textiles of Old Japan; Textiles of West Africa; African-American Visionary Artists of the Southern United States; Hopi Art; Minority Costumes of Guizhou, China; Bali, Indonesia: Art in Everyday Life; and Fantastic Trash.

"Kids Create," an exhibition of the artworks and stories produced by the students, is presented at the Museum March 10 through 13. A reception for the student artists, their families and the public takes place Saturday, March 12, from noon to 2pm. See Galleries listing for details.

"The greatest strength of this wonderful, creative, well-prepared presentation is that it is the kind of lesson that I as a representative teacher would like to teach every day," said Bobby Raymond of the Cupertino Union School District. "It cuts across so many areas of the curriculum, integrates so many ideas, is so enriching, that there isn't one child that does not receive a rich resource of material to use in his or her future life."

For information about exhibits and other Museum programs, call 775-0990.

ENRICHED VISIONS

From art programs and community centers all over the city, extraordinary creations by seniors—drawing, watercolor, sculpture, quilting, collage, jewelry and photography—have been gathered for an exhibit at Fort Mason's Bayfront Gallery.

"Enriched Visions" celebrates the mastery and talent of the older adult population living in San Francisco. The exhibit presents the works of amateurs who have discovered a love of art. By providing an outlet through which they can demonstrate their creative wisdom, the entire community is enriched.

This All-City Senior Art Show was organized by the Montefiore Senior Center of the San Francisco Jewish Community Center. The artists, from neighborhoods throughout the city, represent the ethnic diversity of San Francisco.

The exhibit coincides with Montefiore's annual Festival of Active Living, a month-long series of classes, lectures and special events for people 55 and older. The Festival begins April 11 and culminates on May 15 with an Active Living Fair featuring services and products for older adults. All of these activities take place at Montefiore Senior Center, 3200 California Street.

The exhibit's opening reception at Bayfront Gallery is Sunday, March 6 from 1:30 to 3:30pm. The Gallery is open before, during and after performances at the Cowell Theater. Admission to the exhibit is free. For theater schedule information, call 441-5706. For information about the exhibit and activities, call 292-1260.

THE PLACE TO GO FOR INNOVATIVE THEATER IN SAN FRANCISCO...

MAGIC THEATRE Risk. Adventure. Fun. Going to the edge. It's what the Magic Theatre is all about. Begin a journey into the unfamiliar: enter brave new worlds created by playwrights engaged in a fierce examination of political concerns, social mishaps, and universal conundrums. Join Magic Theatre's commitment to the production of challenging new plays. It's a risky business, but hey, isn't that what adventure is all about?

BAYFRONT THEATER

The Bayfront continues the tradition begun by People's Theater Coalition and Life On The Water, hosting the best work of Bay Area and national theater and music artists and organizations. Bayfront Theater will also host world music and dance concerts on a regular basis. The 1994 season includes works presented by Magic Theatre, Fratelli Bologna, Brava! for Women in the Arts, City Celebration, Climate Theatre, Bill Talen, Life On The Water and Bay Area Theatresports.

COWELL THEATER

The mission of the Cowell Theater is to encourage productions that reflect the talents and diversity of the Bay Area's multicultural community, and to be accessible to a full range of performers and patrons alike. The design is elegant, while taking full advantage of the architectural character of the 75-year-old pier. It's a magnificent 440-seat theater in an unparalleled location, suitable for a wide range of disciplines—one of the Bay Area's most exciting new performance spaces.
